FALLING FLAT: Redskins quarterback Mark Brunell sits on the turf after getting injured during the third quarter of Sunday's 20-14 loss to the New York Giants at Giants Stadium. Brunell had to leave the game.

Redskins Collapse in N.Y.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. | The Redskins gift-wrapped Tom Coughlin's first win as New York Giants coach.

New York forced seven Redskins turnovers, including a 16-yard fumble return for a touchdown — in a 20-14 win Sunday that handed Joe Gibbs his first loss in his second stint with Washington.

Giants quarterback Kurt Warner threw a 38-yard touchdown pass to Tim Carter and Steve Christie kicked two field goals in a game the Giants (1-1) had to sweat out despite having a plus-6 edge in turnovers.

Patrick Ramsey, who took over in the third quarter when starter Mark Brunell went out with a hamstring injury, threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Clinton Portis with 12:01 to play. But he had two other drives in New York territory stopped on interceptions.

Washington, which had only one turnover in a win over Tampa Bay last week, kept giving the ball away in the third quarter. Portis fumbled at the Giants 30 on the opening drive and Ramsey was intercepted by Alexander in the corner of the end zone on third-and-goal from the 7.

The win snapped a franchise record-tying nine-game losing streak for the Giants, who closed last season with eight straight losses under Jim Fassel. TOM CANAVAN (AP)

Iraqi PM: Elections On Track

Allawi vows January vote; hostage-taking intensifies

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Militants sawed off the heads of three hostages believed to be Iraqi Kurds in a grisly videotape that surfaced Sunday, hours after Iraq's prime minister said January elections would be held on schedule and asserted that American and Iraqi troops were winning the fight against an increasingly bold insurgency.

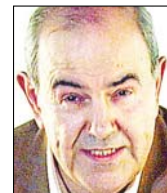

In another sign of continuing instability, a suicide car bomb killed three people in Samarra — a northern city that U.S. and Iraqi commanders have portrayed as a success story.

Over the past week, about 300 people have been killed in escalating violence. Last week, U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan warned there could not be "credible elections" if the security conditions continue as they are now.

But Iraqi Prime Minister Ayad Allawi, speaking in London, said his interim government was determined "to stick to the timetable of the elections," which are due by Jan. 31.

Meanwhile, the Arab news station Al-Jazeera aired a separate video claiming 18 captured Iraqi soldiers would be killed unless a detained aide of rebel Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr was freed in 48 hours.

The videos surfaced the day before the Tawhid and Jihad group, led by Jordanian terror mastermind Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, threatened to behead Americans Jack Hensley and Eugene Armstrong and Briton Kenneth Bigley, who were seized from their Baghdad house last week. ALEXANDRA ZAVIS (AP)

SPORTS | Fore-Gone Conclusion A Pennsylvania golfer struck in the face by an errant ball was unable to convince a jury the man who hit him was negligent for failing to yell "Fore!" James A. Tomkins claimed fellow golfer George Long didn't yell the stan-

THE GREAT BEYOND

Heaven Calling

Dane Squires was late for his own funeral. At least it seemed that way after people gathered Thursday at a Toronto funeral home to mourn the retired welder from Newfoundland whom they believed had been hit by a train. Relatives of Squires were watching the casket being loaded into a hearse when his daughter, Trina, was told she had an important phone call. Her father was on the other end. Squires was initially identified as the man who was hit by a commuter train last Friday night. The body was badly mutilated in the accident but still fit Squires' description, police said. Authorities haven't yet identified the victim. (AP)

Clean Sweep

Falling leaves and chillier nights aren't the only events that herald the arrival of autumn — the change of seasons also inspires people throughout the country to rustle themselves out of their summer rut and have a little bit of fun. Sometimes with brooms. And, on occasion, fruit. In the case of the Moms and Daughters Cantaloupe Race Western Days celebration in Cache, Okla., it was both — and 11-year-old Jennifer Rosado, left, took home first place, the Lawton Constitution reported. Ivan's Victims Face Tough Cleanup

President Bush views areas in Fla., Ala., hardest hit by storm

PENSACOLA, FLA. | Across storm-battered Florida on Sunday, hundreds of relief workers fanned out to help still-numb families, motorists waited in lines miles long to buy gas and residents sifted through the rubble of demolished and damaged homes and businesses, trying to salvage anything of their life before Hurricane Ivan.

President Bush visited the Pensacola area and Alabama on Sunday — his third such visit for Florida — and flew by helicopter over parts hit hardest when Ivan howled ashore Thursday with 130 mph wind. The hurricane spawned deadly tornadoes and a huge storm surge that gutted homes and businesses, washed out roads and bridges and knocked out power.

"Hang in there," the president told residents as he walked along a street where Ivan obliterated dozens of homes, leaving lawns littered with broken lamps, clothes dryers, windows, chairs and microwaves.

Ivan's path across the South and Northeast left at least 50 people dead, 16 of them in Florida.

The president has declared disaster areas in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Carolina, freeing up federal money for housing programs.

Gulf Power Co. had restored power to 30 percent of its customers in the Panhandle as of Sunday, leaving nearly 253,000 homes and businesses still without power, most in Escambia County. BILL KACZOR (AP)

Pulitzer-Winning Photojournalist Dies

NEW YORK | Eddie Adams, a photojournalist whose half-century of arresting work was defined by a single frame — a Pulitzer Prize-winning Associated Press photo of a communist guerrilla being executed in a Saigon street during the Vietnam War — died Sunday. He was 71.

Adams died at his Manhattan home from complications of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or Lou Gehrig's disease, said his assistant, Jessica Stuart.

In addition to his photographs of 13 wars, Adams' images of politics, fashion and show business appeared on countless magazine covers and in newspapers around the world.

But enduring fame resulted from a single photo taken Feb. 1, 1968, the second day of the communists' Tet Offensive, in the streets of Cholon, Saigon's Chinese quarter.

Adams won a 1969 Pulitzer Prize for the Saigon execution picture, among the more than 500 honors he received in his career, including a 1978 Robert Capa Award and three George Polk Memorial Awards for war coverage. RICHARD PYLE (AP)

Air in Smoky Bars Worse Than Polluted Streets

TRENTON, N.J. | If you're wondering whether a smoky bar or a city street filled with diesel truck fumes is more harmful to your health, you might want to skip your next happy hour.

Smoky bars and casinos have up to 50 times more cancer-causing particles in the air than highways and city streets clogged with diesel trucks at rush hour, according to a study that also shows indoor air pollution virtually disappears once smoking is banned.

The study found casino and bar workers are exposed to particulate pollution at far greater levels than the government allows outdoors.

"This paper will help localities pass smoking bans," predicted the study's author, James Repace.

Repace tested air in a casino, a pool hall and six taverns in Delaware in November 2002 and January 2003, two months after the state imposed a strict indoor smoking ban.

Repace found an average level of respirable particles of 231 micrograms per cubic meter of air in the eight Delaware venues. That's 15 times the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency limit for outdoor air and even tops the 199-microgram rush-hour level at Baltimore Harbor Tunnel tollbooths. (AP)

Letter to Editor On Iraq War Still Making Waves

PHOENIX | The letter to the editor was printed more than nine months ago but its effect is still reverberating through Arizona.

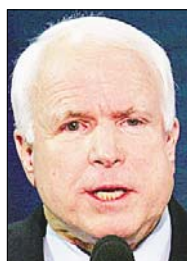

The Dec. 2 letter in the Tucson Citizen made a suggestion on how to end "the horror" of American soldiers being killed in Iraq: Go to the nearest mosque and kill five Muslims.

In response, fearful Muslims kept their children home from religious school. The Gannett Co. newspaper received numerous protest letters from readers, issued an apology and sent staff to meet with members of a local mosque.

Two men on Jan. 13 filed a class-action lawsuit against the newspaper on behalf of Islamic-Americans, and the Arizona Supreme Court is being asked to decide whether to overturn a trial judge's ruling allowing the newspaper to be sued for alleged distress the letter caused.

The newspaper argues that its First Amendment rights protect it from such lawsuits, but the plaintiffs contend that the newspaper, by choosing to publish the letter, crossed the line. PAUL DAVENPORT (AP)

Chinese Leader Now in Full Control

Longtime political heavy Jiang cedes control of army to Hu

BEIJING | Hu Jintao became the undisputed leader of China as the country completed its first orderly transfer of power in the communist era on Sunday with the departure of former President Jiang Zemin from his top military post — giving a new generation a freer hand to run the world's most populous nation.

Jiang, whose term did not end until 2007, resigned at a meeting of the ruling Communist Party's Central Committee that ended Sunday.

Analysts did not expect Jiang's exit to affect Beijing's stance on relations with the United States or Taiwan, economic reform or other key issues. Jiang and Hu are not known to have had any major policy disagreements and both support continued capitalist-style reforms and one-party communist rule.

But the consolidation of the top party, government and military posts in Hu's hands will allow him and his premier, Wen Jiabao, to act more decisively as the government copes with challenges such as wrenching economic changes and rural poverty.

Hu, 61, replaced Jiang as party leader in late 2003 and as president early the next year. But the 78-year-old Jiang, who led China for 13 years, retained influence by holding onto his military post even as all his contemporaries retired in a long-planned handover of power. The party spent nearly a decade preparing for the handover, hoping to avoid the upheavals that accompanied earlier transfers of power.

The official Xinhua News Agency said Jiang's resignation showed "his broad-mindedness as a true communist." AUDRA ANG (AP)

Iran Rejects U.N. Freeze on Enrichment

Official says country will stop cooperating if sanctions are levied

TEHRAN, IRAN | Iran on Sunday denounced as "illegal" demands from the U.N. atomic watchdog agency that it freeze all work on uranium enrichment — a technology that can be used for nuclear weapons — and threatened to limit cooperation with the agency if it moves toward sanctions.

But Hasan Rowhani, Iran's top nuclear negotiator, stopped short of outright rejection of the International Atomic Energy Agency's demands and held out the possibility of negotiations on the issue.

"We are committed to the suspension of actual enrichment,"

Members of Iran's Assembly of Experts attend a rare meeting open to reporters in Tehran on Sunday, where speakers openly condemned the U.N. resolution.

Rowhani said at a news conference a day after the IAEA governing board issued its demand to freeze all enrichment-related work. "Actual enrichment" refers just to the injection of uranium gas into centrifuges.

Rowhani indicated Iran's other activities, such as production, assembly and testing of centrifuges, were likely to continue, however.

"This [suspension] demand is illegal," he said. "The IAEA board of governors has no right to make such a suspension obligatory for any country."

Such ambiguity has led U.S. and other officials to accuse Iran of hiding an intention to create a nuclear weapons and trying to stonewall the international community. Iran says its nuclear program is only for peaceful energy purposes.

If the IAEA refers questions about Iranian nuclear activities to the U.N. Security Council for possible sanctions, Rowhani said: "Iran will ... limit its cooperation with the IAEA." ALI AKBAR DAREINI (AP)

Iraqi Leader Says Saddam's Trial May Start in Oct.

BAGHDAD | Iraqi Prime Minister Ayad Allawi said Sunday that ousted Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein and his lieutenants would go on trial soon.

"Roughly speaking, I think October," Allawi said in an interview with ABC's "This Week." He said he did not think the trial would take long because the evidence against Saddam was "overwhelming."

He did not say whether he expected the ousted dictator to be executed if convicted.

Since his capture last December, Saddam has been held in U.S. detention at an undisclosed location awaiting trial on broad charges of killing rivals, gassing Kurds, invading Kuwait and suppressing uprisings. ALEXANDRA ZAVIS (AP)

E. Germans Vote for Fringes

Mainstream parties punished by voters for dismal economic state

BERLIN | East Germans gave a strong boost to far-right groups and the former communists in two state elections Sunday, punishing the country's biggest mainstream parties for the region's high unemployment and cuts in social programs.

Though projections based on partial returns gave the fringe parties no share of power in Saxony or Brandenburg, the results were a fresh setback for Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder's Social Democrats.

Franz Muentefering, head of the Social Democrats, called the 9.3 percent taken by the far-right National Democratic Party in Saxony — almost on par with his

Expressions of Defiance In Sudan After U.N. Vote

Officials react to threat of sanctions over Darfur

KHARTOUM, SUDAN | Sudan isn't afraid of a U.S.-backed United Nations resolution threatening sanctions over the violence in Darfur, President Omar el-Bashir was quoted as saying Sunday.

"We are afraid neither of the U.N. nor of its resolution," state-run television quoted el-Bashir as telling a meeting of local political leaders in Khartoum.

Sudan's parliament speaker, Ahmed Ibrahim Tahir, also was quoted by the official Sudan Media Center as making similarly defiant remarks during a meeting of tribal leaders in Darfur. "If Iraq has opened one gate to hell for the West, we are going to open seven gates," Tahir was quoted as saying.

The U.N. Security Council approved a resolution Saturday threatening oil sanctions against Sudan unless the government reins in Arab militias blamed for a killing spree in Darfur and ordered an investigation of whether the attacks constitute genocide. The vote was 11-0 with four abstentions — China, Russia, Pakistan and Algeria.

Megawati Unlikely To Keep Presidency

Indonesian leader's challenger has 25-point lead

JAKARTA, INDONESIA | Indonesian voters hungry for change are expected on Monday to do something that was unthinkable during the country's three decades of authoritarian rule — toss out an incumbent president and vote in a political newcomer who has promised to crack down on corruption and revive the battered economy.

Polls show Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono with more than a 25 percentage point lead over President Megawati Sukarnoputri. Most analysts expect the former general will win the election in a landslide.

Police said they have deployed nearly 140,000 officers across the vast archipelago to guard polling stations. There were fears of a terrorist attack after a blast outside the Australian Embassy here on Sept. 9 that killed nine. The blast has been blamed on the al Qaeda-linked terror group Jemaah Islamiyah.

Monday's election will complete a democratic process that began in April with parliamentary elections. It was followed in July with the country's first direct presidential election, which was won by Yudhoyono.

Megawati

But because he didn't secure more than 50 percent of the vote, the 55-year-old Yudhoyono was required to face second-place finisher Megawati in a run-off.

At her house in an upscale Jakarta neighborhood, Megawati received hundreds of supporters who clutched her photo and chanted "merdeka," or freedom. It was the rallying cry of her father, Sukarno, who founded the country.

"Let's win this election peacefully," said a smiling Megawati. (AP)

Pakistan Jails 35 Prisoners Freed From Guantanamo

Security authorities to interview the men, prison officials say

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | Pakistan's government ordered 35 Pakistanis just freed from a U.S. military prison at Guantanamo Bay in Cuba to be detained for three months in a high-security jail, officials said Sunday.

The men, who were arrested as soon as they returned to Pakistan on Saturday, were being held at "special cells" in Adiala Jail where they would be "debriefed by the security agencies," officials at the prison in Rawalpindi near Islamabad told The Associated Press.

"We have received orders from the government to detain them for three months," the official said on condition of anonymity. He refused to give further details. Two other government officials confirmed the detentions, but asked not to be identified.

Earlier, Interior Ministry official Brig. Javed Iqbal Cheema said the men would be allowed to return to their homes after they had been interrogated.

Meanwhile, Pakistani President Gen. Pervez Musharraf left for the United States on Sunday to address the U.N. General Assembly session. He is expected to meet with President Bush on the sidelines of the assembly. (AP)

D.C. Teen Charged In Death of Girl, 4

WASHINGTON | A 14-year-old boy is expected to appear in the District's juvenile court Monday to face charges of felony murder and first-degree child sexual abuse in connection with the death of a 4-year-old girl from Southeast.

Angel Fleming, who lived on the 1100 block of Chicago Street SE, was taken to Children's Hospital on Sept. 14 with stomach pains and was placed in intensive care. She died at 3:15 p.m. the next day of what the D.C. Medical Examiner's Office ruled was multiple blunt force trauma injuries.

D.C. Metropolitan Police Department spokesman Joe Gentile said police investigators working with social workers identified the 14-year-old as a suspect in the case and took him into custody.

The boy will be presented before a magistrate judge in the D.C. Superior Court's Juvenile and Family Courts Division on Monday. (AP)

Parents Plead Guilty to Starving Child

WASHINGTON | A pair of District parents face up to 30 years in prison after they admitted to starving their infant to death.

Tony Hodge, 23, and Kimberly Price, 22, pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter and child neglect last week in the death of their son, Shawn Price. The baby was just 59 days old and weighed only five pounds when he was found dead in the couple's apartment in the 4500 block of B Street SE on Oct. 19, 2001.

Hodge and Price are expected to be sentenced later this year. (AP)

? SINCE YOU ASKED

Q I have a theory that Metrorail conductors do not always pause the train between stations due to another train, but rather to use the bathroom. If not, what happens when they need "to go"?

A Huh. Metro trains actually don't have bathrooms (which makes that theory all the more intriguing). But the reasons for those brief stops are often more mundane, and don't involve running to the bathroom. For example, train operators may be signaled to stop or will have to wait for a train ahead to move forward, a Metro spokesman said.

But if they really need "to go" during a trip: The operator radios Metro's control center to send a relief driver, who meets the train at the nearest station and takes the helm. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

Native Country

The Smithsonian unveils an indigenous gem, the National Museum of the American Indian

RIBBON-CUTTING | Thousands of Native Americans and thousands more well-wishers will attend the many events celebrating Tuesday's opening of the National Museum of the American Indian.

But the museum building itself will also be a star attraction. Designed by a team including Venturi, Scott Brown, and Associates and Blackfoot architect Douglas Cardinal, the structure is sited on the last plot of land available on the National Mall, just east of the National Air and Space Museum.

Themed gardens frame the site, offering glimpses of carefully cultivated "wetlands," "meadowlands" and an "upland hardwood forest."

A giant cantilevered slab overhangs the entrance. Just inside the doors, a four-story rotunda houses a gathering and performance area. Designated the Potomac, it is circled by stone benches and a woven copper screen.

An obvious model for the space, which directs attention both inward and upward, is Frank Lloyd Wright's Guggenheim Museum, with its spiral-ramp-ringed atrium. Elsewhere throughout the NMAI, the use of vertical elements of warm-toned woods looks to the example of Finnish architect Alvar Aalto.

Of course, what goes around comes around. Both modernists were influenced by earlier Native American designs.

The intersection of Indian themes and modern art is explored in an exhibit of the figurative sculpture of Allan Houser (Chiricahua Apache) and the abstract painting of George Morrison (Grand Portage Band of the Chippewa).

Historic objects are installed in wall cases and sealed drawers and described on touch-screen terminals. There is pottery from throughout the Americas and intricately beaded headdresses for both bride (Wishram) and horse (Lakota).

Everywhere, history is elucidated, and complicated. The thrust of the three main exhibits — "Our Universes," "Our Peoples," and "Our Lives" — is toward dispelling the simple romantic myths and replacing them with stories from the hundreds of different native cultures that thrive today.

Follow a curved wall, thread your way through a narrow passage, and you might end up in a gallery, a theater or the Mitsitam Cafe — Piscataway and Delaware for "let's eat" — which offers cuisines from the five regions of Native America.

At the time of last week's press preview, construction and cleaning crews were hard at work on the finishing touches. Some exhibits were still being installed, their object labels still being arranged. The larger of the two museum shops was being given the once-over.

In other words, everything is up-to-the-minute, down-to-the-wire, brand-spanking new at the museum that has, at last, been built to honor the hemisphere's oldest cultures. GLENN DIXON

CBS Flubs Tony

DEBUT | On CBS' new sitcom "Listen Up" (8:30 p.m.), Jason Alexander plays sports newspaper columnist Tony Kleinman, who's trying to connect with his 14-year-old daughter, Megan (Daniella Monet), and 15-year-old son, Mickey (Will Rothhaar).

Tony has a propensity for obsessive behavior and agitated outbursts that alienate everyone around him, and he deserves most of the guff he gets from his family. This may strike a blow for justice, but it doesn't make the show funny. Certainly not as funny as Tony Kornheiser, the real-life Washington Post columnist on whom "Listen Up" is based.

On tonight's premiere, Tony blows a business deal for his fund-raising wife, Dana (Wendy Makkena). He also mortifies Megan at her soccer games. Meanwhile, after deciding to broaden his horizons beyond sports and cover lifestyle issues, he can't think of anything to write.

"I got nothing!" he erupts, sounding very much like George Costanza. What can Tony do to make his deadline? Use his family as source material, of course.

"Listen Up" gives Tony a second gig: co-hosting a sports talk show with a jock sidekick, Bernie (Malcolm-Jamal Warner). This show-within-a-show, which enlivens "Listen Up" with high-decibel banter, is called "Shut Up and Listen."

Better not to listen; turn this off and watch something else.

BALL DROPPED: Redskins receiver Rod Gardner might want to invest in some glue. He made a great catch late in Sunday's game, but then dropped a sure touchdown pass to add to his other missed chances.

Redskins Give Giants a Win

Washington commits 7 turnovers in 20-14 loss to division rivals

REDSKINS | Seven was the Washington Redskins' unlucky number on Sunday.

That's the amount of turnovers the team committed in a 20-14 loss to the New York Giants, who delivered head coach Tom Coughlin his first victory in the Big Apple.

The loss was Joe Gibbs' first since returning to coach the Redskins after a 12-year absence.

"Seven!" said quarterback Patrick Ramsey, who threw three interceptions after filling in for the injured Mark Brunell. "That's almost unheard of in football."

The turnovers — Ramsey's interceptions, two fumbles by running back Clinton Portis and one fumble and interception by Brunell — led to 17 of the Giants' 20 points.

Washington started well, opening with a flawless 53-yard drive that Brunell capped with a 2-yard TD toss to Chris Cooley.

The Giants, who had one of the worst turnover differentials in the NFL last season at minus-16, were a plus-3 in the second quarter, when they turned a 7-0 deficit into a 20-7 lead.

The seven takeaways were the most by the Giants since 1986 against Washington in clinching the NFC East title. New York went on to win its first Super Bowl.

While few think these Giants are a contender, this was the best they have looked in a while. The win snapped a franchise record-tying nine-game losing streak.

It also took some of the pressure off Coughlin, who has been criticized by players and media for his no-nonsense approach. "We definitely needed a win with all that was going on around here," defensive end Michael Strahan said. "Winning helps heal some of that." (AP)

Grading Gibbs

The best and worst from the game

→ BEST CALL: A play-action pass on the goal line that led to the Redskins' only lead.

→ WORST CALL: Joe Gibbs had no choice but to let Patrick Ramsey keep throwing the ball, but that's what cost the team the game.

→ BEST ADJUSTMENT: Sending Clinton Portis out on pass routes despite his running struggles. He was open often and scored a touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Brunell Day-to-Day Following Injury

Brunell appeared to get hurt on a rollout on a pass to tight end Walter Rasby. On the next play, he handed off to Clinton Portis and fell to the ground. He walked off the field and was replaced by Patrick Ramsey, who threw one touchdown and three interceptions.

Coach Joe Gibbs said Brunell's status was day-to-day.

Brunell was acquired in a trade with Jacksonville in the offseason. He beat out Ramsey, the team's top draft pick in 2002, for the starting job in training camp. (AP)

OUT OF PRIME TIME: In just his second game out of retirement, Ravens cornerback Deion Sanders injured his hamstring in the Ravens victory over the Steelers on Sunday. He took part in eight plays before the injury — seven as a nickel back and one as a punt returner.

Ravens Run Away With Victory Over Archrival Steelers

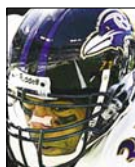

FOOTBALL | The Baltimore Ravens rebounded from a stinging defeat by running over the hated Pittsburgh Steelers.

Jamal Lewis rushed for 62 yards and two touchdowns and Chester Taylor added a career-high 76 yards on the ground to lead Baltimore to a 30-13 victory Sunday.

Eager to atone for a season-opening 20-3 loss in Cleveland, the defending AFC North champions dominated the team they consider their biggest rival.

Steelers quarterback Tommy Maddox went 4-for-13 for 67 yards before being forced out in the third quarter with an elbow injury.

He was replaced by first-round draft pick Ben Roethlisberger, who threw fourth-quarter touchdown passes to Antwaan Randle El and Hines Ward after the Ravens were already ahead 20-0. (AP)

Round 1 Goes to Manning

Colts top Titans in battle of last year's co-MVPs

FOOTBALL | Peyton Manning had plenty of help from the Indianapolis Colts on Sunday. Steve McNair didn't get the same treatment from his Tennessee Titans in the first game between the NFL's co-MVP quarterbacks.

Manning threw for 254 yards and two touchdowns, and Nick Harper intercepted McNair's pass in the end zone in helping Indianapolis rally for a 31-17 victory over Tennessee.

Edgerrin James also ran for two touchdowns and 124 yards as the Colts (1-1) avoided losing consecutive games in the regular season for the first time since the middle of the 2002 season — now a span of 26 games.

The Colts outscored Tennessee 28-7 in the second half, forced two turnovers and sacked McNair three times in winning their third straight game in this series.

The Titans had plenty of chances to bury the Colts in a deep hole in this early AFC South showdown between the only teams to win this division since realignment.

"We never talked about 0-2," Manning said. TERESA M. WALKER (AP)

U.S. No Match for Europe

Americans are dominated again in Ryder Cup

GOLF | Over here, over there, it no longer matters. Europe again proved to be the best in the Ryder Cup with its biggest romp over the Americans.

Lee Westwood ended any remaining suspense at Oakland Hills with a 4-foot par putt on the final hole to beat Kenny Perry on Sunday.

With Colin Montgomerie 1-up playing the 18th and assured of a half-point, Europe had the 14 points it needed to capture the Ryder Cup for the fourth time in the last five tries.

It also left little doubt as to who the underdogs are now.

The Europeans are not only winning, they are winning big.

Montgomerie also holed a 4-foot par putt on the 18th to beat David Toms, pushing the total to 14 1/2 points for an outright victory.

The only thing left to decide was the size of their margin, and they already were assured of their biggest blowout in the 77-year history of the Ryder Cup.

Europe already had 17 1/2 points and led the final match on the course. Its largest margin had been 16 1/2-11 1/2 at The Belfry in 1985, when it won for the first time in 28 years.

Since then, Europe has captured the cup seven times in 10 tries.

Busch Rolls to Victory In Chase for Nextel Cup

AUTO RACING | Kurt Busch had plenty of gas this time.

After running out of fuel while leading eight laps from the end a week earlier in Richmond, Busch dominated Sunday's NASCAR Nextel Cup race, completing a sweep of the 2004 events at New Hampshire International Speedway and coming away tied with Dale Earnhardt Jr. for the lead after the first race of the new 10-man, 10-race championship showdown.

"Well, No. 1 is in the books, but there's still an awful lot of work to do," Busch said after leading 155 of the 300 laps on the 1.058-mile oval in the Sylvania 300.

Busch was just as strong late in the July race here when he won easily, solidifying his spot in the top 10

Yankees Batter Red Sox

New York builds its AL East lead to 4.5 games

BASEBALL | Gary Sheffield and the New York Yankees battered Pedro Martinez, opening some breathing room in the AL East.

Sheffield, Derek Jeter and Jorge Posada homered off an ineffective Martinez, and Mike Mussina gave the Yankees another excellent outing Sunday in New York's 11-1 rout of the Boston Red Sox.

The Yankees outscored their rivals 25-5 the past two days after losing 3-2 Friday night.

By taking two of three in the series, the first-place Yankees moved 4 ½ games ahead of Boston, their largest margin since before games of Aug. 31. The teams play another three-game set next weekend at Fenway Park. By then, the Red Sox might be too far back to catch New York, though they still have a comfortable lead in the wild-card race.

Martinez (16-7) lasted only five-plus innings and allowed eight runs. Mussina (12-9) allowed one run and seven hits in seven innings. He has won three starts in a row and allowed only four earned runs in his last four starts spanning 30 innings. MIKE FITZPATRICK (AP)

Santana Strikes Out 14 In Victory Over Orioles

BASEBALL | Johan Santana just keeps getting better, progressing deeper into his personal zone of pitching dominance.

Santana won his 11th straight start with another stellar performance, striking out a career high 14 in eight shutout innings for the Minnesota Twins in a 5-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles on Sunday.

By winning his 12th consecutive decision, Santana (19-6) tied a Twins record set by Scott Erickson in 1991 and matched by Brad Radke in 1997.

Bruce Chen (1-1) stayed with Santana for a while, but four of the six hits he allowed were homers — by Luis Rivas in the third, Henry Melvin Mora walks away dejected after Johan Santana struck him out Sunday.

Liberty Best Mystics for Second Place

WNBA | Becky Hammon and rookie Shameka Christon scored 18 points apiece Sunday, and the New York Liberty marked their return to Madison Square Garden with a 79-75 victory over the Washington Mystics to lock up the second seed in the Eastern Conference playoffs.

Hammon had six points in the final 36 seconds, and Elena Baranova added 16 points and 11 rebounds for New York, which was playing at the Garden for the first time since July 18. VIN A. CHERWOOD (AP)

Games Share a Cell

DIVERSIONS | It's difficult to compare "Momentum" to the cinematic landscapes and sweeping orchestral scores common in many popular video games, but that would be missing the point.

Unlike most games for cellular phones in the United States, "Momentum" lets game creator

Allen Eichler challenge up to five people from just about anywhere in the country to collect coins scattered throughout a maze.

As millions buy increasingly powerful cell phones, many companies are racing to develop video games to take advantage of the newfound portability.

The newest twist is multiplayer: You can face real people in space battles or fishing tournaments. Until recently, multiplayer on cell phone games meant, at most, posting high scores on a leader board.

There are still technical hurdles with pumping game information through slow cell phone networks and with tuning computer servers to handle mobile multiplayer games.

For now, "Momentum" runs on a limited number of handsets offered through Verizon Wireless.

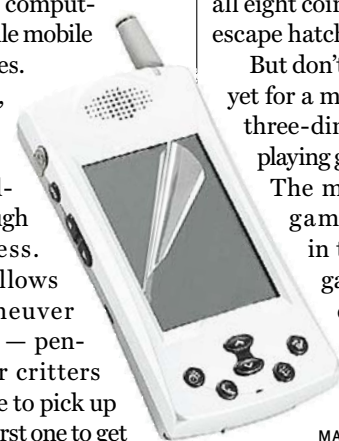

The game allows players to maneuver their characters — penguins and other critters — around a maze to pick up eight coins. The first one to get all eight coins and exit through an escape hatch wins.

But don't hold your breath just yet for a miniaturized version of three-dimensional online role-playing games like "EverQuest."

The market for cell phone games remains a niche in the overall U.S. video game business, though experts believe it will grow to $1 billion in the United States within a few years.

Careers

Steal This Job

Lyman Moquin, 35

JOB: Senior manager for engineering and operations at Nextel Communications in Reston, Va.

SALARY: Median $91,000 a year, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in science and technology studies from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute; master's degrees in administration from Central Michigan University and information and telecommunication systems from Johns Hopkins University

CLARE DUGGAN

WHAT HE DOES: Moquin helps identify projects for wireless service provider Nextel to pursue, then oversees the dozen managers who handle the engineering process. He estimates how much time, money and manpower is needed for each project, from network upgrades to new features and designs for cell phones that are manufactured by Motorola.

WOULD YOU WANT HIS JOB? He has about 150 projects in the works, so the ability to prioritize is an absolute must.

HOW YOU CAN GET HIS JOB: Aim for engineering and management experience in wireless telecommunications or jobs involving chip and circuit design or software development.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: The Project Management Institute (pmi.org), or the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (ieee.org)

DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

AL BEHRMAN/AP

INTO ACCOUNT: Finance and entrepreneurship major Rob Vanderheyden of the University of Dayton is one of many students to choose a stable business major.

LIVE ONLINE

Life at Work

AMY JOYCE's column appears Sundays in The Washington Post. She chats every Tuesday at 11 a.m. at washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

I sent out an Evite, inviting some coworkers to my house for dinner. Now as the host, I know they've seen it. Somehow, it seems extremely difficult for people to bother RSVP'ing. We're talking about a one-click RSVP. It seems extremely rude that people won't acknowledge an invitation.

Chill a bit. Send out an Evite reminder. E-mails get piled up, and we forget they are there in the midst of hundreds of other e-mails.

I am scheduled to meet with my boss to discuss my maternity leave. I would like to negotiate returning on a part-time basis. They don't "owe" it to me but if they say no, I would probably reconsider working here after my leave, which they don't pay me for. I'm confident I could still get the bulk of my responsibilities done and would take a reduction in pay. Any advice on how to make this request?

Sounds to me like you have nothing to lose. But plan it out before you sit down with the boss. Think about how your cutting back could benefit your company. One thing: You'll be cheaper for almost the same amount of work. Sell that point. You'll also be happier.

Major Concerns

What students study can have a big impact on job prospects

EDUCATION | It's a well-worn pickup line at college keg parties: What's your major?

And in today's uncertain job market, it's a lot more. Positions once filled by graduates with yesterday's hot majors are disappearing or being shipped overseas, so a student's answer to the question is one of the most important financial decisions they will ever make.

Research by professors at Northeastern University in Boston shows that a college student's major is more important than what college they attend in determining their starting salary upon graduation.

Yet with employment patterns shifting much faster than in the past, choosing a major based on what jobs will be in demand a few years down the road is a tricky endeavor.

The most obvious recent trend is a retreat from computer science studies, which was a hot area in the 1990s before the tech bubble burst and companies began offshoring programmers' jobs.

What emerged as one substitute is actually one of the older — and decidedly unexciting — standbys: accounting.

Last year the number of students graduating with accounting degrees rose 11 percent, according to a survey by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

The University of Dayton, for example, this year has 101 students concentrating in entrepreneurship, the most since it introduced the curriculum in 1999.

Dayton junior Rob Vanderheyden, a double-major in finance and entrepreneurship, wants to first get a corporate job, so he can "learn some real-life stuff before I go out on my own."

But most experts say basing a major decision solely on the expected hot jobs of the future is not necessarily wise.

Steven Rothberg, president of Minneapolis-based CollegeRecruiter.com, recommended students first consider their competencies, interests and values.

"If they focus on what they're good at, what they like to do, and what's important to them, there's an excellent chance that they will end up in a job upon graduation that will make them happy," Rothberg said. MICHAEL P. REGAN (AP)

Home Decor

Who needs garden gnomes when there are llamas and sheep?

Every morning, four llamas bask in the morning sun on a hill near Shirley Pringle's house. Later, in the heat of the day, they retreat to the shade of a nearby oak. It's just the sort of picturesque scene Pringle envisioned when she bought the animals for $1,000 apiece to roam the 7.5 acres surrounding her rural Kelseyville, Calif., home a couple of hours from San Francisco.

"It's exactly what I had in mind — a minifarm," she said.

Pringle doesn't breed the animals. She just likes to look at them.

People have used animals as prey, pets and food for thousands of years. Bored with conventional landscaping, some homeowners now are using bulls, sheep, chickens and other live animals as outdoor decor.

Six years ago when Janet and Pattie Chelseth bought a house in Shingle Springs, Calif., about 30 minutes from Sacramento, they populated the 10 acres with live-stock to give their spread the look of a farm. They also brought in six rare, miniature Icelandic sheep and two Indian runner ducks to hang out around a pond stocked with mosquitofish and bullfrogs.

"We saw these odd ducks and thought they were pretty cool looking," Pattie Chelseth said of the runner ducks, which stand upright and look a bit like bowling pins.

Four-legged outdoor ornaments are catching on as homeowners go to ever-greater lengths to outdo their neighbors and make their property stand out. Zoning laws usually keep homeowners from raising farm animals in cities. But it's a different story just a few miles

FAUX FARMS:
Exotic animals are becoming popular lawn ornaments.

"People ask, 'Why buy a llama? What does it do?' But I say, 'What does a Picasso do?' It doesn't do anything but look pretty."

outside town, where there is more grass to play with. If you can have a high-tech modern kitchen and still not cook, why can't you have a ranch or a farm that's just for show?

"People ask, 'Why buy a llama? What does it do?'" said Dennis Abreu, a llama breeder in Mount Shasta, Calif. "But I say, 'What does a Picasso do?' It doesn't do anything but look pretty."

Larry Barker, a Denver cattle breeder, said one of his wealthy customers spent $15,000 on seven head of cattle to roam his land, only to have the steer die and the six cows get sick for lack of enough grass to eat. He finally gave the cows away.

"They just wanted a trophy steer and some cows to put on the pasture," Barker said. "But they didn't take care of them." KORTNEY STRINGER (WSJ)

Television

Channel Surfin'

Washington Post television columnist LISA DE MORAES was online last week to talk about what's on the tube | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

"Father of the Pride": The first one was slightly amusing, the second one not so. The previews for the next one just look bad. How many episodes did NBC do?

It will be on for a while because of the lead time on making animation. Of course, if its ratings really stink once it gets actual competition in its timeslot — and we're not talking about Fox's boxing series which is D.O.A. — I suppose NBC could burn it off on one of its many cable Networks of NBC. But so far it's not doing too badly in the ratings.

I really enjoyed the last episode, I'm sorry to report. I know, it was a half-hour commercial for 7/11's Big Gulp, and yet I found it strangely amusing.

Heard anything about the new "Law & Order" or predictions about the season?

Opposite CBS's "CSI: New York" it's anybody's guess. This will be the most interesting timeslot to watch this fall.

What do Dillon, Harley, Elliot, Dani, and George have in common? They are all the names of female characters on television. What's up with giving boys' names to women? Suddenly it's oh-so-cool to have a hot chick named Harley or Dillon?

Hey, it's better than Tiffany and Lauren. I'm gonna smack the next Tiffany who crosses my path. Didn't you know it's fashionable for a woman to have a man's name?

Is it possible that the folks at GE compromised the Nielsen system to get John McEnroe his zero rating? We find ourselves checking it out every now and then to see just how bad of an interviewer he is and how below-radar his guests are.

Wow, that's devious and brilliant ... just not true. Glad the scratch made you watch, though. Everyone should be required to watch, if only to prove once and for all that, no, not any idiot can host a TV show.

A Disservice to Bike Riders

I'M QUITE DISTURBED by Express' publishing of the article "Lock of Steel" in Friday's edition. You have done a great disservice to bicyclists with this. The article is basically a how-to guide for would-be thieves to steal bikes.

As a public service (the main purpose of newspapers), it would have been helpful to notify the D.C.-area bicycling community about this so that we'd have time to take precautionary actions before the article was published, as increased theft will likely come about from this article.

The very least could have been for the article to describe precautionary actions bicyclists can take against bike theft.

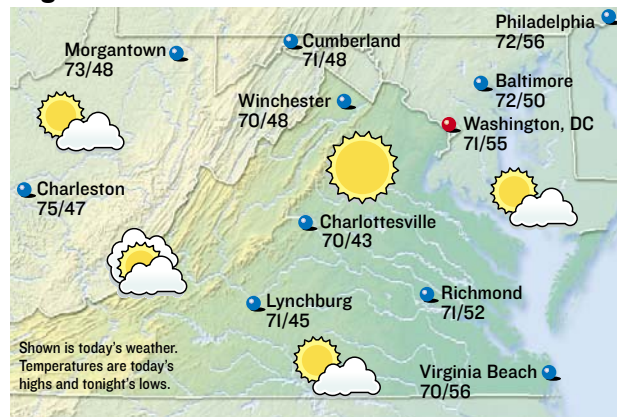

What's next? Articles in Express about how to break into cars? Homes?

News Flash: Former Child Star Arrested With Drugs

Former child star MACAULAY CULKIN was arrested on drug charges Friday during a traffic stop in Oklahoma City, authorities said. The 24-year-old actor, best known for his role in the "Home Alone" movies, was taken into custody on complaints of possession of a controlled dangerous substance without a valid prescription and possession of marijuana, according to the Oklahoma County Sheriff's office. Authorities seized about 17 grams of pot from a vehicle in which Culkun was a passenger. It was not clear why Culkun, who lives in New York, was in Oklahoma City. (AP)

AUTOBIOGRAPHIES

Watch for a Peppy Disco Sequence in the Middle

JOHN TRAVOLTA is taking a stab at posterity. His autobiography, not yet titled, will be published in fall 2006, Hyperion announced this week. In it, the actor will share stories from his life and career. "I've hit a milestone this year in my life, turning 50, and if I waited any longer I'd have to write two books," Travolta, an Oscar nominee for "Saturday Night Fever" and "Pulp Fiction," said in a statement. "I've had such a full life that I really want to share it." (AP)

BRITNEY

The Marryin' Kind

Before hordes of media watchers could exclaim an expected "Oops!", BRITNEY SPEARS pulled off another surprise wedding over the weekend, marrying boyfriend Kevin Federline in a small, private ceremony. The Saturday wedding was confirmed by Spears' record label on Sunday. It was the second wedding in nine months for the 22-year-old Spears. Her first marriage, a Las Vegas-style quickie to childhood friend Jason Alexander in January, lasted a scant 55 hours. (EXPRESS)

THE EMMYS

To See and Be Seen

What's almost as much fun as watching famous people get Emmy awards? Watching them preen and prance before the show. It's like "Circus of the Stars," but in Los Angeles and without the big top. Where else can John and Jane America see JORJA FOX, top left, of "CSI" fame — a show nominated for Best Drama Series — mug for the camera at the same time as Lead Actor in a Comedy Series nominee LARRY DAVID of "Curb Your Enthusiasm"? And the ANNE HECH/MISS PIGGY summit? A rare phenomenon indeed. We think they discussed politics. (EXPRESS)

RULES OF THE ROAD

All Bands Ought to Have a Sequined Duck Suit Phase

A word of advice from ELTON JOHN to up-and-coming musicians: Pay your dues. "Bands today have to learn their craft by putting the hard work in that we did when we were young performers," said John, who started out in the early 1960s toiling on the British pub circuit with the soul act Bluesology. But John said he still listens to new artists for a dose of "energy, rawness and instinctiveness." He was in Shanghai Saturday to promote his first shows in China in his four-decade career. (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may suffer from some confusion or frustration early in the day. It will evaporate once you get an important piece of information.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A new friendship may be suffering from insecurity and doubt. You can improve things by simply being honest and forgiving.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Anyone connected with home or family will look to you for important advice and information.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Manners are more important than you might think, as someone who can make a difference is very likely watching you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can prove that you've got it all together simply by being where you need to be, when you need to be there. Remain calm and unflappable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You will have a chance to repeat yourself, and be allowed to profit from the effort. If the tried-and-true works, then stick with it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) A new obligation demands attention even before you are ready to give it. It's time for a little creative thinking.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Concentrate on small, key issues surrounding home, family and neighborhood. You can be a leader in favor of an important change.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't be so self-assured that others work against you. You can be confident, but don't make a show of it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even the simplest issues have complications, and you will find yourself dealing with much that is complicated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You can pursue a special, personal interest without feeling you are letting something else go by the wayside.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may receive a good deal of opposition, but it will be nothing you cannot handle with ease. Think ahead and be willing to maneuver.
